

That morning a lot of golden sparkling crumbs flew in the cold air. They should have been nearly fourteen thousand three hundred and nineteen! If a plain had flown over the town it would have seen a lot of noses upwards and as many amazed mouths.

Nobody could have been able to tell exactly what was happening. But, there was somebody who knew the truth! And, he was enjoying the scene standing behind a tree and doing the countdown: it was exactly a month to Christmas

Since when he had invented that gadget he went on singing. He couldn't help not doing it. As soon as he heard a sound he had to catch it. It's no use to say that when the "soundcatcher" gave his best it was December.

An important day was going to begin: Christmas was near, four concerts, eight school concerts and two Musical performance were programmed...
